THE BROOKLYN MYSTERY.

Probably there has never been a topic of interest in this country upon which so much has been written to throw no little light, as the mystery in which Plymouth Church, its distinguished Pastor and the sensational Theodore Tilton are involved. In a matter of so grave a nature, it is to be presumed that the Committee to whom the investigation of the subject has been intrusted, would preserve a scrupulous silence until prepared to make a definite report, and that the numerous persons and rumors set afloat are largely indebted to reportorial imagination, but it is remarkable that everything which has transpired, all the utterances which have been made public and all the guarded expressions of the supposed confidantes of either side, have only tended to deepen the mystery with which the matter is surrounded. Theories and explanations have been given only to be met by emphatic contradictions, and the public, in attempting to follow the trail of developments, become lost in the mazes of a labyrinth into which they are decoyed deeper and deeper by the deceptive appearance of light, first on one side and then on the other. Thus far only one thing has become distinctly manifest, and that is that nothing short of a thorough laying bare of the whole scandal will suffice to banish the cloud which has been hanging over the great Brooklyn church and to set the characters of its famous Pastor and his accuser in their true light before the whole world.

There may have been a time when considerations of expediency or magnanimity seemed to demand reticence but when the whole country is filled with discussion of a great scandal that has fastened upon one of the most honored of American names, the time for magnanimity has passed and justice demands a revelation of the truth, no matter where it may strike. We feel confident that the highly respected gentlemen who have been intrusted with the subject recognize the impossibility of any compromise which would not in fact irreparable injury upon the church, and that the cause of religion has already been made sufficiently to suffer by the preservation of a mystery more damaging, than any possible exposure. There is something more than impertinent curiosity in the public desire to know the truth of a matter which has been repeatedly thrust before them in such questionable shape, and the feeling is universal that no private griefs or persons considerations should hamper that complete vindication of Mr. Beecher which is demanded by interests as broad as Christendom itself.

So far there has been nothing but vague arraignment which Tilton has employed with an apparent desire to prolong the notoriety that he had, and which he seems to value more than the fair fame of his own wife. For the language of his letter was expressly calculated to revive the suspicions and rumors which had connected her name with the scandal, and it is hardly to be wondered at that she has separated from the man who insisted upon dragging her reputation in the mire. Still, the inference against her adroitly conveyed by his mystical phraseology was contradicted by his assertion in the same letter that the alleged offence of Mr Beecher was one for which an apology was offered and accepted—a statement entirely irreconcilable with the hypothesis of criminality, which Mr Tilton was willing to pass over without a specific denial. It will require some remarkable development to afford any justification of the course he has pursued in this case, and he will be more fortunate than appearances now warrant if he escapes the lasting contempt of his fellow men.

As for Mr Beecher, such a life and work as his do not go for nothing, even in this iconoclastic age, and it will require a serious offence to outweigh the great services he has rendered to humanity. We feel impressed with a belief that the great hearted preacher has been severely persecuted and that when the truth is known it will cast as slight a blemish on his character as a speck upon the sun.

Our esteemed neighbor of the Press is entirely mistaken in supposing that we desire to provoke a personal attack on any person, but equally so in supposing that "specific examples" would be less agreeable to us than its "general observations." What we have desired and do desire is a fair and courteous discussion of a subject whose importance entitles it to such treatment. When our contemporary claims to be informed of all the efforts made in behalf of one candidate for the Senatorship and to know nothing of the "activity" of others, it seems to us that it is either strangely ignorant or deplorably uncandid. And as proof that we have not taken a singular view of its course, we cite the following comment of the Bath Times on the assertion of the Press that it has heard no intimation of canvassing by agents of Messrs Perham or Washburn —

But it was only the other day that the Press knew of a gentleman,—whether office holder or not is of no consequence,—who had visited every town in York county but one, and found that with the exception of Kittery and one or two other towns the mass of the party was anti-Hamlin.

The siting of a person in the Portland Custom House as favorable to Mr. Hamlin, does not seem of sufficient importance to warrant the rather spiteful parade of nick names, unless such an exhibition of independence in that establishment is considered remarkable. If we favored personalities we might give the name and predilections of the York County traveller a similar publicity, but we concede his right to the highways and appreciate the value of his report. We presume that our Portland contemporary desires that the Senator question shall be decided for the best interests of the State and the Republican party, and we only ask that it shall credit us with equally worthy motives and that fair treatment shall be extended to all the candidates. If there is any thing unreasonable in this we fail to see it.

We were mistaken in designating the editor of the Machias Union as Chairman of the Democratic State Committee. In the political gossip concerning the probable action of the Democracy he was prominently mentioned for that position, but as the machine was kept in the old rats he was not the man for the place.

Colby University admits young ladies this year for the first time.—Boston Post.

On the contrary, young ladies were granted admission in 1871, and the Junior class now includes Miss M. C. Lowe, a young lady of Waterville who entered the Freshman class in that year. It may not be out of place to state that Miss Lowe has maintained an excellent standing as regards scholarship. She took the first prize as the best "stuted" member of her class, the second prize in declamation in the Sophomore year and was awarded an honorary part during the present year for excellence in scholarship. The male members of the University find that the advent of young ladies is conducive to a more gentlemanly bearing among themselves and as will be seen in the case just cited special efforts are required of them if they wish to prevent being surpassed by a woman.

THE UNITED STATES SENATE.

[From the Boston Journal.]

The New York World announces that "the next House of Representatives is conceded to the Democrats," and the reason it gives for being so sure about the matter is, that "Gen. Butler did not hesitate to speak of it openly in his last speech." Well, that is good. It is not mentioned what Gen. Butler said but that everything he happens to "speak of" should be assumed as settled may answer for Democratic organs, but it will not be accepted as a rule anywhere else. It shows, however, on what a slight foundation the paper above named builds its hopes of securing Democratic predominance in Congress. It even pretends that it is probable that there will be a Democratic majority in the Senate after the 4th of March next; "at any rate," it says, "the chances are so favorable that the Democracy need but make well directed exertions to secure the result." Let us see how that is. The Senate, when full consists of 74 members, of whom a majority are 38. The present Republican strength is 49, Democratic, 19, Liberal Republican, 5, vacancy, 1. Twenty-five Senators go out on the 4th of March next, leaving, according to the World, 31 Republicans (though we make 32) and 15 opposition to hold over. Among the Senators already chosen to fill the forthcoming vacancies are Newton Booth of California and James E. Harvey of Kansas, both nominally Independents or Anti Monopolists. Though claimed as "opposition" members by the sanguine calculator whose predictions we are considering, there is every reason to believe that, on the great majority of important questions, they will act with the Republicans. Admitting, however, that they should join the Democracy they and the nominal Democrats elect:—Eaton of Connecticut, Whyte of Maryland, Thurman of Ohio and Withers of Virginia—would add six to the Democratic force of fifteen which would hold over after the 4th of March next. Five more Democrats are claimed as sure from Delaware, Missouri, Tennessee, Texas and West Virginia. But in Missouri the Republicans and Anti Monopolists appear to be acting in harmony, and if the union continues a Republican, or at least not an opposition Senator, will be chosen in place of Mr. Schurz. This would add but one Democrat to the supposed twenty-one mentioned above. Thirteen more—the World says twelve—will be needed to get a majority, 38, of the whole body, and they must be secured from the following States.

Maine	In place of Mr. Gilbert.
Indiana	In place of Mr. Pratt
Connecticut	To fill a vacancy.
Illinois	In place of Mr Hamlin
Massachusetts	In place of Mr. Washburn
Michigan	In place of Mr. Chandler
Minnesota	In place of Mr Ramsey
Nevada	In place of Mr. Stewart
New Hampshire	In place of Mr. Blaisdell
New York	In place of Mr. Fenton.
Pennsylvania	In place of Mr. Scott.
Rhode Island	In place of Mr. Edmunds.
Wisconsin	In place of Mr. Carpenter.

On our supposition, after conceding Messrs Booth and Harvey to the Democrats, which we have no right to do, the Democrats must make a clean sweep of all these States last named, or at least they must carry all but one. And they going to carry Maine, Vermont and Massachusetts? Have they any prospect of carrying Michigan, Minnesota and Wisconsin? Have they any reason to calculate upon Pennsylvania? We need not mention others of these States where the Republican chances are at least as good as those of the Democrats. It is obvious enough, then, without looking further into the future, that the Democratic talk of getting control of the United States Senate next year is one of those absurdities which cannot stand the slightest examination. It is astonishing that a party should indulge in such air castles unless it has lost faith in any other.

POLITICAL AND PERSONAL.

The Barnstable Patriot announces that Mr Buffington's health is fully restored, and it is now understood that he will submit himself to the wishes of the people of the district.

Ex Gov. Gilbert C. Walker, formerly of New York, more recently of Chicago, is seeking to secure the Democratic or Conservative nomination in the Richmond District of Virginia.

Hon. Henry L. Pierce, of Boston, will be a candidate for re-nomination in the Third Congressional District, but will not consent to have his name used in the State Convention as a candidate for Governor.

A prominent Democratic politician remarked a few days since that "the third term" talk is not without its significance. And he adds: "Should Grant be re-nominated for a third term, it will be by those who are now termed his political opponents."

Perhaps there is something in the suggestion of the Philadelphia North American that a very large part of the clamor that is raised in reference to the indebtedness of the southern States is intended to "make a case upon which a demand can be based that the United States Government shall assume and pay the bonds."

The ingenious designs of the Democratic leaders in Louisiana are betrayed in Gov. McEnery's call for a "union of the whites of the State, representing as they do, its virtue, courage and wealth, into one compact and imposing phalanx." We are glad to see, however, that several of the better class of Democratic papers in the State are opposed to the "White Leagues."

According to a report published in a Charleston paper, Gen. Grant told Senator Robertson that "he would rather see the State Government pass into the hands of the Democratic party than see it continue in the hands of the corrupt crew who have brought things to the present pass." Senator Robertson adds: "I call that a pretty square thing for the President to say."

One of the most significant and cheering signs of the times is the practical emancipation of the press. Despite abuses which are evident and familiar, and which have seriously injured it, the press was never so independent or so powerful as it is to-day. Its influence was never more felt, was never more palpable than it was during the late session of Congress. The investigations which were the best work of the session, were greatly due to it.—Harper's Weekly.

The Postoffice Department has ruled that the clause in the section of the postal bill, delaying the time for prepayment of postage on newspapers to begin till January, does not cover the clause in relation to public documents, so that from this time bound public documents can be sent from Washington for ten cents each, without regard to size, and all which are unbound at the rate of ten cents a pound.

BOWDOIN COLLEGE.] A correspondent of the Press is greatly embarrassed. He has a son preparing for college, and is unwilling to send the boy to Bowdoin while President Chamberlain remains at the head of that institution. This remedy would seem to be simple, but this unhappy parent says that, "I do not want to send him to either of the other colleges in the State, and the next best place except the State, so I have no remedy but to keep him at home." There is no other, of course, to suppose, except the Presidency of Chamberlain to retire, in order to make room at Brunswick for this remarkable young man. This boy's father, or mother, whichever it may be, goes on to remark, "the college has been running down ever since President Harris left it." This is a great mistake. The college never had so many students on its rolls as now, and it is precisely because it is doing more work than ever that it needs more money.—[Portland Advertiser.

THE COMING RACES.

NEW YORK, July 16. A Saratoga special of this morning says.—A perfect avalanche of sports has descended upon Saratoga Tremendous excitement exists in anticipation of the sport this afternoon. There are no pools sold, but in outside betting Vale is the favorite and the Harvards have the second chance. The betting may possibly change as the day wears and the hour approaches for the regatta. The weather is very threatening with a southwest wind blowing hard. The water on the lake is rough. The Wesleyan crew are strongly backed now in consequence of the tougher work to be done in rowing with the water in the present condition.

WASHBURN'S LAST SENSATION drew another large audience at Norombega Hall last evening, and, as on Tuesday evening, gave perfect satisfaction. So many and so varied are the attractions this company offers, that it would require more space than we can spare to particularize them; and we can but echo the general sentiment of the audiences by saying that it is the best variety company that ever appeared in the city. MYSTERIOUS OCCURRENCE.

DISAPPEARANCE OF AN UNKNOWN MAN FROM A RUBBER CAMP—HIS BODY FOUND TWELVE DAYS AFTERWARDS—CORONER'S INQUEST, ETC., ETC.

About the first of the present month Mr. C. C. Eldridge hired in this city a man, whose name he did not learn, to go to join a crew peeling hemlock bark in the woods on Clamon stream. The man accompanied his employer nearly to his place of labor, when Mr. Eldridge returned, and the man went on to the camp. He worked with the crew about an hour and then went out to pick some boughs. Not returning at a reasonable time the horn was blown for him, but he did not come in; and some of the men commenced a search, which lasted into the night could be found, and though the hunt was continued the next day it was unavailing. The search was then given up, as it was thought the man had become tired of his job and left the woods.

NO TRACE OF HIM

On Tuesday of the present week—eleven days after the man's disappearance—some of the crew noticed an offensive scent in the air not far from their lodgings, and another search in the direction from whence it came resulted in finding

THE MISSING MAN'S DEAD BODY

on the margin of the stream, within fifteen rods of the camp, but so hidden by a thicket as to defy discovery until decomposition began. The body lay partly in the water and partly on the bank, and the position and place in which it was found were such that the crew deemed it best not to disturb it until they notified the Selectmen of Greenfield, and the latter in turn, believing the matter should be investigated, sent for Coroner Hartwell Lancaster, of Oldtown who at once went to Greenfield and caused a jury to be summoned. The jurors were duly impanelled, proceded to the spot and held electing testimony substantially as above stated, and rendering a verdict in accordance therewith. Coroner Lancaster then caused the body to be removed and interred upon the bank of the stream in a suitable manner, near the spot where it was found, as it was in such an advanced stage of decomposition that it could not be removed any greater distance with safety to the health of the assistants.

AN INQUEST ON THE BODY,

WHO WAS HE?

The man left his coat and some other clothing in the camp before he disappeared, and the only thing found about them which could lead to the discovery of his identity was bit of a hand-bill or advertisement, upon which was written in pencil the name John F (or T.) Fuller He was apparently between 35 and 38 years of age, about five feet nine inches in height, and had dark hair, moustache and whiskers. His clothes, which are in possession of the Coroner, are of dark cloth and well made. If the deceased has friends in this city, section or State, they can learn all further particulars by addressing Coroner Lancaster at Oldtown.

WHAT CAUSED HIS DEATH?

Whether the man fell dead or committed suicide is an open question, as it seems pretty well settled that there was no foul play. The first mentioned hypothesis seems most probable, taking all the circumstances into consideration, but the whole matter is enveloped in mystery.

BANGOR TROTTING PARK.

THE WAGON RACES YESTERDAY AFTERNOON.

Considerable interest had been taken by horsemen in the races announced to come off over the Bangor Trotting Park, yesterday afternoon, and, had the weather been cooler, there probably would have been a large crowd out to witness them; but, at one o'clock, the mercury was "fooling round" among the nineties, and a big black cloud loomed up in the west, promising a shower in the early afternoon, so that many who intended going out backed down, and, in consequence, the attendance was light. The track was in fine condition, though a little hard, and everything about the Park was in its usual good shape. The showers went around to the southward, and a light but cool breeze sprang up, and really a finer afternoon is rarely found for a trot in this region.

There was some delay in opening proceedings; but, at three o'clock, Messrs. W. McPheters, Charles Record and A. R. Greenough, who had been selected as judges, entered the stand, and called up the horses for

THE FIRST RACE.

These were the roan mare Fashion, entered by W. Covill, of Weld, and the black stallion Fred McOliver, entered by J. B. P. Wheelden, of this city, both to wagon. Fashion drew the pole, and, and, after scoring three times, the horses got the word. Fashion took half a dozen lengths from the wire, and, while her driver was endeavoring to pull her down, McOliver shot about the turn, and took the pole away, gaining such a lead that he was five lengths ahead at the end of last first quarter, which he increased to forty-seven. This last he had to run out

TWO VEILS.

BY SALLIE M. B PIATT

From the nun's wan life a buried passion
Bloomed out like a grave-rose in her face.
"Sweet, my child," she said, "in what fair fashion
Do you mean to wear this lovely lace?"

"These?"—and, with a feverish hand and shaken,
Showed her head the priceless veil she wound.
"Faith in man," she said, "I have forsaken,
Faith in God must surely I have found."

"Yet, with mosses in the dewy distance
And the whole land flowering at my feet,
Through the convent-garment's dark resistance
Black-soul'd, I can hear my Hero's beat."

"Tropic eyes me full of light and languor,
Northern suns too gay with Northern frost
Ashes—ashes, after fires of anger—
Love and beauty—what a world I lost!"

"Sister," laughed the girl with girlish laughter,
"Sister, do you envy me my veil?"
"Yes, my sister, to ask for mine hereafter,"
Answered very plenus light and pale.

"Me for your black crown is heavy heather
Tedious counting sweet stone beads must be,
Or, but there are jewels worth the wearing
Waiting in this sunny world for me."

Sister have a care, you are forgetting
He not bridal thorns among my flowers
Only buds and leaves your vows are wetting
All my bridal hair—They fell in showers!

After years and years behind the grating,
(Oh, that sudden sight, young face grown gray!)
With icy boughs and empty winds awaiting
All the colder cares one's years repay.

"Sister, see our bride-veil! there were never
Thorns so sharp as those within its lace.
Sister give me yours to wear forever,
Give me yours, and let me hide my face."

APPLETON'S
AMERICAN CYCLOPÆDIA

New Revised Edition.

Entirely rewritten by the ablest writers in every subject. Printed from new type and illustrated with several Thousand Engravings and Maps.

The work originally published under the title of The New American Cyclopædia was completed in 1863-63. It was found to contain many articles which, though useful in all parts of the United States, were the special subjects of which had taken place in every branch of knowledge, and which required to be entirely rewritten to present the latest and most thorough revision of the facts and statistics. This has been done in the present edition.

During the last ten years the progress of discovery in every department of knowledge has made a new work of this character indispensable.

The movements in political affairs has kept pace with the progress of science and the rapid multiplication of the facts of industrial and social life and the new science and remodelling of political governments, have required large additions to be made to the work. Especially has this been the case in the United States, where the progress of population, wealth, and political changes has been unprecedented in the history of the world. Within the last ten years the population of the country has increased from 31,000,000 to 40,000,000; the production of the precious metals has been multiplied more than fourfold; the means of internal communication by railroads and telegraphs have been doubled; while the organization of new States and Territories, the remodelling of the whole system of taxation, and the complete change in the relations of capital and labor, have rendered the former work comparatively worthless as a guide to the present condition of the country.

The new work is entirely independent of the old, which is now scarcely consulted in any department of knowledge. Every article has been written anew, with the utmost care, by writers who have special knowledge of the subjects of which they treat, and the whole work has been thoroughly edited with reference to the present state of science and literature.

The illustrations, which are introduced for the first time in the present edition, have been prepared with especial care, and will be found to combine accuracy with artistic excellence. They have been engraved on wood expressly for this work, and no pains have been spared to obtain the best results. Many of the maps are entirely original, and the whole have been executed with the most scrupulous care. Great attention has been given to the subject of Topographical Delineation, and the latest authorities have been consulted in every instance. It will be completed in sixteen large octavo volumes of nearly one thousand pages each, fully illustrated with several thousand Wood Engravings, and about fifty Maps on steel, with graphic shade

NO. [illegible]

A Tried and Sure Cure.

This remedy is the result of the research and study of the proprietors who had been a great sufferer for years, and who has had all the advertised remedies and the skill of many physicians at command without relief. Without an exception, have they been put before the public in so short a time, or got up without a thought of making it an article of merchandise, but the numerous and increasing demands for it, have induced him to manufacture it, and now aim to advertise it for the benefit of sufferers like himself.

It is an infallible remedy, if persistently used, for those painful maladies of Rheumatism and Neuralgia, and for the benefit of the afflicted it is given to the public. Circulars, containing certificates of cures and the skill of many physicians, sent free by mail to any address. Price of Mrs. Judge Appleton, Mrs. Talbot, Mrs. F. M. Marvin, Mrs. Gen. Wadsworth, Rev. DR LAMBERT UPON "BIOMETRY."

The crowded state of our columns in yesterday's issue compelled us to defer notice of Dr. Lambert's address before the annual ist of the Legislature, on Wednesday evening The house was crowded by an attentive audience including members of the medical fraternity, the bar and the clergy, and other professional men The scope of the lecture was as present, in some of its leading principles and features, the subject of "Biometry," or the laws of hereditary descent, and the signs and indications of longevity, as a science, positive, practicable, and of very great value in its application in all the varied relations of life He gave practical illustrations referring to strangers in the audience of the signs and indications of longevity—and stated very clearly and succinctly the laws and principles upon which the science rests. The practical fa. t noticed by all, of hereditary taint noted, were shown to have relation to the inherent capabilities of living. These conditions can all be measured, and a judgment upon them by one who has become even ordinarily expert may be relied upon—especially in determining the proper premiums to be charged in insuring lives Referring to the "experience tables" in use by the Insurance Companies, their inagreement with each other and their inconsistencies as assumed data were pointed out. It was said that the only safe and just basis was found in following the teachings of Biometry, and rating each risk upon its own characteristics The safety, as well as the equity, of this was shown in the fact, as an illustration, that in the company with which he is connected (the American Popular), which originated the plan, the test house have been for the last year only between three and four per thousand persons, while some companies have lost as high as seventy-four, and many over ten per thousand—the varying rates of loss being in themselves proof of the unreliability of the tables, and of the general average system of insuring all time of the same age at the same rate Life insurance, he said, is simply protection of the family in case of the death of its head, and its simple and common sense method is found in the payment, year by year, of the natural premium representing the mortality belonging properly to that year,—the "True Life Insuring Premium,"—at low cost, without surplus, without "dividends," without speculative, without deception.

Dr Lambert was appropriately introduced by Dr. Carpenter, of the Assembly, and was listened to throughout the long address with marked attention.

No other company in the world possesses these principles, or gives the advantages of a 1 ver rate of premiums to those possessed of the natural inheritance of long life.

The only questions with them are: sound health and the general average mortality of a given age.

The AMERICAN POPULAR, by its gradation of risks, insures each according to the individual characteristics of the risk.

It fixes the premium rate accordingly without any special reference to the age.

Its premiums are based therefore upon the actual risk of the individual, charging him only the cost of carrying his risk.

This is JUST, EQUITABLE and SAFE.

Eight years' experience has proved these facts.
